Alameda County High Schoolers Lead Efforts to Boost Safe and Active Transportation

Designed by Alameda County Safe Routes to Schools Youth Task Force members, Reboot Your Commute events provide student leadership experience and encourage active and shared transportation.

ALAMEDA COUNTY, Calif. – Across Alameda County, students are preparing to lead “Reboot Your Commute,” two months of fun and engaging events supported by the Alameda County Transportation Commission \(Alameda CTC\) that inspire fellow classmates to be creative and thoughtful about the impact of their transportation choices. Presented by the Alameda County Safe Routes to Schools \(SR2S\) Program, Reboot Your Commute events will take place at participating Alameda County high schools between Monday, February 2 and Friday, March 31, 2026.

Reboot Your Commute encourages high school students to walk, roll (e.g., bike, skate, scoot, and use wheelchairs and other mobility devices), carpool, and take transit to school. During these events, students share their transportation and travel stories through drawing and creative writing to foster a schoolwide conversation about how travel choices affect their community, environment, health, and well-being.

“Programs like Reboot Your Commute show how investing in youth leadership can create lasting benefits for our schools and community safety. By empowering students to lead and shape transportation conversations, Alameda CTC is helping foster healthier travel choices, safer streets, and a more sustainable future across Alameda County,” remarked Alameda CTC Executive Director Tony Tavares.

Washington High School (Fremont) students host a Reboot Your Commute event in 2025.

“Reboot your commute is a compelling example of community-centered program design, modeling youth leadership through peer-led approaches that engage fellow students. Alameda CTC is proud of our Youth Task Force high school leaders who are engaging their peers and facilitating important conversations about shifting to active travel modes to support the environment and community," praised SR2S Program Manager Denise Turner.

Reboot Your Commute events are organized by SR2S Youth Task Force members, with assistance from Alameda County SR2S staff. Some 60 students representing every high school district in Alameda County comprise the Youth Task Force and meet quarterly to arrange events, build community, and support sustainable transportation solutions at participating schools. Since 2011, task force members have learned to mentor classmates and offer support with signing up and accessing SR2S resources such as Youth Clipper Cards, the Student Transit Pass Program \(STPP\), and biking and walking route maps. Each year, the program supports rising transportation thought leaders who leave a lasting impact. One example of the program's leadership development opportunities is this initiative's name, "Reboot Your Commute," which came from a Youth Task Force member.

Each year during Reboot Your Commute, SR2S Youth Task Force student leaders design and manage events at their schools, including setting up welcome tables where they facilitate peer-to-peer engagement and hand out raffle tickets to students who choose active or shared transportation to get to school during the event. Student leaders also customize events by incorporating SR2S engagement activities like a bike blender (a bicycle-powered fruit smoothie maker), trivia wheel, or participation in SR2S trainings. The program benefits from high school students designing activities that resonate with fellow classmates.

Visit the Reboot Your Commute event webpage for more information. Student leaders and their schools can express interest in getting involved by submitting a registration form.
